

Dear President Obama,

Healthy salmon depend on healthy rivers. Each year, California and Oregon's salmon fishing industries have provided thousands of family-wage jobs, world-class recreational opportunities, and millions of pounds of delicious, healthy seafood for America.

Yet a politically-driven push to overturn protections for fish in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta could mean the end of the king salmon run which has formed the backbone of the West Coast's commercial and recreational salmon fishing industry for generations. The Bay Area's sustainable seafood leaders, business owners, and fishermen urge you, Mr. President, to ensure we continue to follow science and the law—not politics—and protect our iconic salmon, our jobs, and our way of life.

Sincerely,
